Introduction

The Hilson Life Adjustment Profile (HLAP) is intended to be used as an aid in assessing an individual's social and emotional functioning. It has been developed with the purpose of providing relevant material to be further explored in individual interviews, counseling sessions and/or follow-up evaluations. It is expected that these results will be used as one component in a comprehensive evaluation including other elements such as written tests, interviews, and follow-up evaluations.

* Factor 1: Emotional Adjustment Difficulties/Psychopathology (EM) - Moderate Score

Compared with others tested, this individual scored in the top 16% suggesting some emotional adjustment difficulties. This factor score is a general measure of psychopathology and includes the CH, OC, LF, AI, PI, SU, CE, and SL scales.

Factor 2: Recent Activity Level/General Functioning (RA) - Low Score

This individual has scored at least in the average range on Factor 2. This factor score is a measure of a person's general level of social interactions and/or activities. Scales contributing to this factor include LN and LV.

* Total HLAP Score (TO) - Moderate Score

According to item responses, she has scored in the top 16% compared with others tested. A very careful evaluation of all scale elevations over 60t is recommended.

Compared with others tested, this individual has been candid in her responses. She has been willing to admit to minor faults and has presented a realistic picture of herself.

She appears to have a very active social network and to enjoy relationships with friends. She reports that she enjoys communicating with friends and makes this a part of her everyday life.

 This individual reports having a very limited, perhaps nonexistent, or troubled relationship with her family. She does not appear to have strong family ties or may have some degree of resentment towards one or more close family member(s). She may not be able or willing to depend upon family for help with problems. A significant history of family conflicts and some alienation from relatives may be evident upon further evaluation. This person may fear being "left alone in a crisis" without the support of family members.

This person reports having an active life and is involved with hobbies and/or activities that hold her attention. She is likely to pursue various interests and may not be dependent upon interactions with others in order to feel productive or fulfilled.

She does not show evidence of excessive anxiety, or a tendency to be a chronic worrier. This person does not admit to symptoms of anxiety or irrational fears that may limit daily functioning.

She does not appear to be overly concerned about her health and does not appear to overreact to the presence of physical symptoms or illness.

This person does not appear to be overly concerned with details, and does not show evidence of being particularly "obsessive" in her approach to life.

 She is suspicious and/or skeptical of the motives and actions of others. She may feel that some people are "out-to-get" her, and that few can be trusted. In some individuals, these attitudes are suggestive of a pattern of antisocial behavior. In others, paranoid thinking may be indicated.

She does not admit to symptoms of depression or active suicidal thoughts.

According to item responses, there have not been recent major life events, such as the death of a family member or close friend, that have significantly affected this person's life.

She has expressed satisfaction that she has been able to reach most of her major life goals. This person appears to be generally content with her accomplishments in life and does not express major regrets.

Critical Items for Follow-up Evaluation

The following endorsed item(s) may provide useful leads for follow up interviews and/or further investigations. Since individual items may have been endorsed in error, they should not be used alone as a basis for making decisions, and should be verified by the tested individual and/or by outside sources whenever possible.

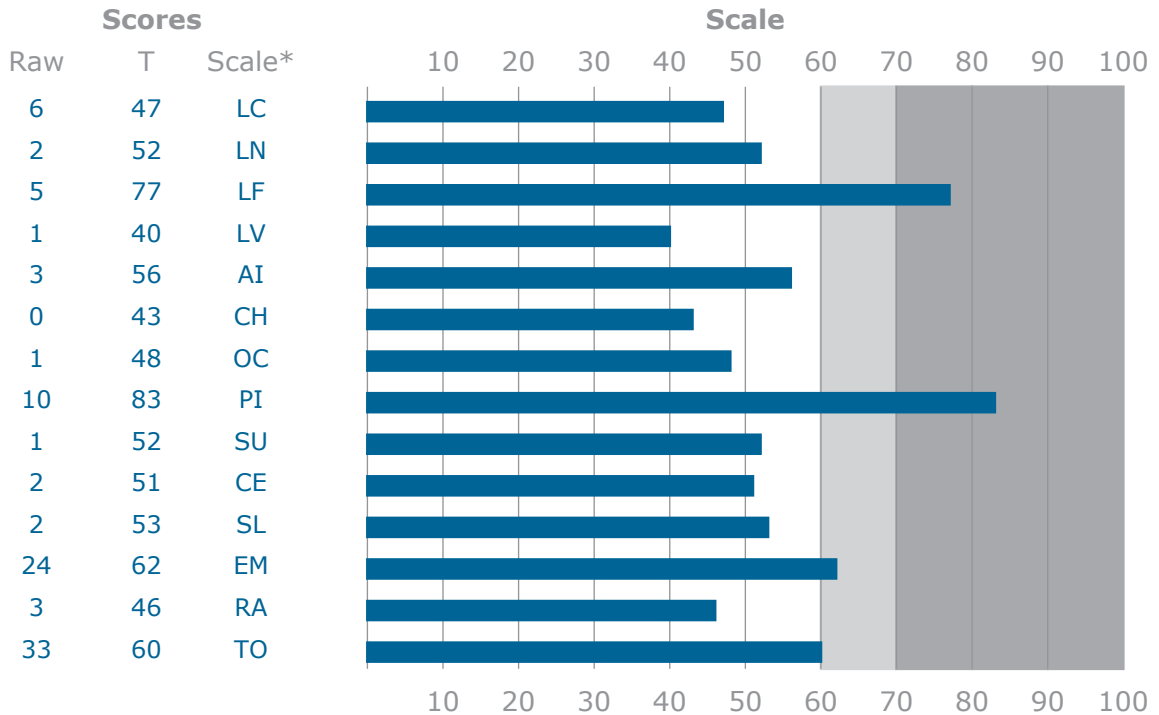

- 33. There have been times when I lost my appetite, had difficulty sleeping, and lost interest in my usual activities. (T)

- 68. I have been told that I am an anxious or nervous person. (T)
- 100. Someone has told me that I am a very anxious person. (T)

- 61. I have lost my financial independence within the past two years. (T)
- 84. My neighbors are too interested in what I am doing. (T)

Critical Item Total = 5

HLAP Profile Graph

Scores over 69T are 'significantly' elevated and point to areas for further exploration. Each scale over 69T falls outside the 'average range' and indicates the person tested has scored higher than 97.7% of the norming group.

Scores over 59T may point to areas for further exploration and indicate that the person tested has scored higher than 84.1% of the norming group.
